bags if they feel peaceful, energetic and spirited. Only three to five bags are made with the same pattern, so the customer is basically buying a limited edition. This feature, along with the crochet bottom, sets Earthsplint yoga bags apart from other brands.

Conveniently, her mom, Rhonda Uretsky, owns BSM Marketing, Stanborn, and was able to help Carly get the word out to every yoga studio in the country.

"We put letters together for companies in the tri-state area and sent them out to different studios throughout the country every four weeks," says Uretsky, who has been practicing yoga for 30 years and is a certified yoga instructor.

Daily classes of school and Carly can beg you down, but yoga is a great way to reconnect with yourself and has become very popular in the past 20 to 40 years, Uretsky says.

Carly has been going to yoga class with her mother since she was 9.

"I helped her with the

Carly began with Sivananda yoga, which opens up the chakras, she says. Along with her mom, she now does Bikram yoga, which is conducted in a 105-degree room and consists of 26 muscles and basically turns you into putty, causing you to sweat like crazy, Carly says. "It's very challenging — it is the most challenging part of the most challenging yoga," she says.

The success of Earthsplint Yoga Bags also is partially due to the Web site www.earthsplintyogabags.com. Teen People magazine saw the Web site and decided to include the bags in the accessories section of the April 2005 issue.

Carly was invited to attend the Designers Ball in New York on June 11. She had the opportunity to attend this charity fashion event, which showcased her product to an upscale New York crowd.

School of Monmouth County, a K-8 elementary school in Holmdel, where she learned to think differently at a young age. Based on the English open school system, the New School has no grades or testing, and students learn at a cooperative, not competitive, environment.

"We started from childhood with Carly to inspire her to find a talent and build from there — parents should strive to stay in a traditional system get out of the way," Uretsky says.

Carly is a junior at the Freehold Performing Arts Center High School and is not sure what she wants to do with her life at this moment. With interests in writing, drama, Hebrew language and music, she plans to attend a liberal arts college.

Carly was inspired by her mother's work and decided to start her own company after graduating from high school. She was also influenced by her father, who is a lawyer, and her grandfather, who was a successful businessman.

"I'm very proud of her and think she's good at what she does," Uretsky says. "I'm also proud of her because she's willing to work and not remain on unemployment. She's willing to work and has a strong work ethic."

Carly's goal is to get to the store sweaty mats that she says are available at Target and Wal-Mart. Her bags are available at
